the Haytian Consul at this port from 1875-76 to 1879. Mr. Bassett succeeded me in that position. I am now a commission merchant and buy on commission whatever I can, whether it be ships, or guns, or anything else in my sline. Some time ago I received an order for a certain number of guns from a firm in Jamaica. I did not ask the persons who ordered them what they were for. I simply bought the guns of Herman Boker & Co., of Duane-st., and shipped them to Jaumaica. I had no idea for what they were intended. I had no reason to ask. Early in June I received an order from Soutard & Abbott, of Kingston, Jamaica, for the purchase of a steam tug to raise the Calvert, a steamer sunk off Port Autonio by the Atlas steamer Alpin. Photographs of the sanken vessel and her position were sent me. Here they are."

Mr. Kearney showed the pictures, representing the masts and smoke-stack of the steamer extending above the water, and continued:

"I purchased the Mary N. Hogan upon the order and had her put in the dock at Astoria to be fitted out. The water of the West Index is so much salter than in this latitude that it was necessary to fit the Hogan for the service required of her, and a keel condenser was put in, Mr. Soutard himself came on here and supervised the arrangements. There was no secret in the matter. Superintendent Roberts, of the Atlas Line, knew alt about it; so did Mr. Coston and my friend Mr. Busbnell. Any one might have had full information about the matter. Yet during the time the Hogan was at Astoria we were shadowed by detectives. They followed Mr. Soutard, as they also did me. We had nothing to conceal, however. I suppose that the Haytian officials here were suspicious became I had bought arms which, so it proved, were intended for the fropic. I have no knowledge of that. Well, the Hogan was fitted out and was ready for sea on Saturday last. It is nonsense to suppose that she was to be armed and sent out as a war vessel. THE SALVATION ARMY IN TROUBLE. THE SALVATION ARMY IN TROUBLE.

The doings of a division of the Salvation Army which has its headquarters in a building in Fifty-first-et, near Ninth-ave., formerly used as a Methodist Church, was a subject of inquiry in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday. According to the story told in court, the army has been in the habit of assembling outside this building and attracting large crowds, much to the annoyance of the residents of the heighborhood. They appealed to Captain [killica and the property-owners petitioned the Mayor to abate the nuisance. An appeal was also taken to Justice White, who issued a summons which resulted in the appearance of several members of the army in court. Justice White informed them that they had a right to worship as they saw fit in their own building, but that they must stop their open-air meetings. He warned them that if they did not do so they would be arrested and, if brought before him, would be punished.

HOVEY TAKEN TO COURT.

THE GENERAL TERM'S DECISION ADVERSE. A FINAL APPEAL TO BE MADE TO THE GOVERNOR TO-DAY.

Edward Hovey was taken from his cell in the Tombs yesterday, and for four hours sat it the General Term room of the Supreme Court, With him sat the Rev. Dr. Guilbert, while the condemned man's coursel, William F. Kintzing and Senator Grady, argued before Chief-Justice Noah Davi and Justices Brady and Cullen. The General Term had been specially convened to hear after had been specially convened to hear after the appeal from the order of Justice Donohue denying a new trial. Hovey was calm outwardly, but his drawn mouth, and starring eyes fixed on the wall in front of him, and the occasional nervous trepidation under which he labored. Assistant District-Attorney Vincent appeared for the people and argued a motion to dismise the appeal, on the ground that the order was not appealable under section 517 of the Code. Mr. Kintzing contended that an appeal rom an order denying a motion for a new trial was not pre-cluded by the section referred to. As originally encedure provided that the application for a new trial should be made before judgment. In 1882 that section was amended by adding thereto "except in case of a sentence of death, when the pplication may be made at any time before exention," Mr. Kintzing said that though section 517 had not been amended so as to a pressly include an appeal from an order denying a motion for a new trial made after judgment, it was clear that the design of the Legislature was to extend rather than restrict in capital cases. Aside from this, he held that the order appealed from the same points.

Chief-Justice Davis said that without deciding whether or not the order was appealable, they would permit the argument of the appeal to go on. Mr. Kintzing then read the affidavits of Dr. Hardy and others, read before Justice Donohue on the original motion, and argued that had that testimony been given at the trial the priso in a very delicate position. Unless the Governor grants a respite Sheriff Davidson is of the opinion that the sentence of execution must be carried into effect.

The wife of Hovey was with him a part of the day, but left him before the decision of the General Term was announced. Deputy Sheriffs Culleu and Galligan constituted the death-watch from 4 p. m. until midnight and Deputy Sheriffs McNulty and Goodman from midnight until 8 s. m.

Hovey was seen in the prison by a Tribunz reporter in the evening. He said: "My counsei tell me that they have very good hopes, but so they have told me all along. Don't you think that in many case they should give me some more time? That is all I want. I have been buoyed up so long with false hopes that I have not had time to prepare myself. I only want a little more time—just a little time to prepare myself." he repeated in a mechanical tone, as if it were a lesson learned by rote.

"But perhaps the appeal will be unsuccessful."

"But perhaps the appeal will be unsuccessful."
"Yes, sir, that's true. It's always best, I suppose, to take the least hopeful view, and then you won't be disappointed. But I think I should have more time to prepare myself."

Two basement rooms in the tenement-house No. 117 West Nineteenth-st., were let recently to Evan Jones, a laborer forty years oid, and his wife. The couple brought a small quantity of furniture with them, and it was soon discovered that they were wretchedly poor, and that Mrs. Jones was sickly. After she had been in the tenement-house a short time she became so iil that her busbend sent her to Believue Hospital. The other inmates of the house did not know where Jones came from or where he was employed. He became mehancholy after his wife went to the hospital. At 1.p. m. yesterday he left his rooms and walked to the ferry-house at the foet of West Twenty-third-st. He got on board the ferry-boat Jay Gould, and when it was in the middle of the North River, on its way to Jersey City, he jumped overboard. His body disappeared quickly. Jones had left behind him his hat, an old umbrella and a letter addressed to his sick wife. Poverty was the cause of his suicide. The property and letter were left in the Jersey City ferry-house. Mrs. Jones was kept in ignorance of her husband's death.

Gottheb Lucks, a tailor fifty-nine years old, committed suicide by swallowing a dose of Paris green in his room at No. 531 Fifth-st. It is supposed that he had found life intolerable and had concluded philosophically to end it.

James Kane, a farmer from Minnesota, arrived in this city on Saturday on his way to England. He had engaged passage on the steamship Alaska, which sailed yesterday. He was met by John Jornes, an emigrant expressman, of No. 152 Washington-st., and driven to John Clark's boarding-house, only two blocks distant. Jornes had promised Kane to drive him to a dirst-class boarding-house and take his baggage to the steamer before it sailed, and was to receive $2. He represented himself as manager of the Guion Line. Notwithstanding his agreement he charged Kane $3 for driving him to Clark's Kane was charged $150 per day board by Clark. Yesterday morning Jornes took Kane's baggage to the steamer's pier and then demanded $750 for so doing. Kane refused to pay it. Jornes told, him if he did not pay him he would take the baggage back to Clark's and Kane would lose his passage. Kane declared that he would rather do so than be swindled. Jornes then took the baggagelback to the boarding-house, and when Kane started out to find a policeman he was assaulted by Jornes, although he is a cripple. Kane complained to Marshal McDermott and the latter cited Jornes to appear and answer the complaint.

STARVING IN A NEW-JERSEY SWAMP. STARVING IN A NEW-JERSEY SWAMP.

A man named Friedhoffer, employed by F. Oechsien, of Passaic, N. J., was crossing a lonely swamp near that city on Monday evening, when he heard a noise among a clump of bushes, and looking under the thicket he saw a man, emaclated and evidently delirious, tossing about on the ground. The grass about the prostate man was beaten down and the earth was heaped about him as if he had been there a long time. Friedhoffer ran to the city for help and Chief Oldis came with a back, dragged the stranger out from among the bushes and took him too the police station at Passaic. Dr. Rice was summoned and pronounced the man nearly dead from starvation. Milk punch was forced down the man's throat by the spoonful to keep him alive. Yesterday he was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, Paterson. By putting their ears close to his mouth his attendants managed to learn from his broken whispers a sad story of destitution and despair. He said that his name was John Albrous. He had last come from New-York and had no friends in this country. He had been in the bushes, according to his statement, about three weeks. This almost incredible part of the story is believed by some residents in the neighborhood, who saw the man about three weeks ago go into the swampy field where he was found, and had not seen him since. Albrous at the hospital yesterday said that he did not want to beg any more, and had crawled into the bushes to die. Several times he resisted the attempt to force food down his throat, and evidently longed for death. He is about fifty-seven years old.

THE DRY GOODS DISTRICT.

MEANS TO DECREASE INSURANCE RISKS. WRITERS.

WRITERS.

The hall of the Board of Fire Underwriters was well filled yesterday with insurance men, who met to take some action to decrease insurance risks in the dry goods district of the city. The subject has been under discussion for some time by a special committee, which has held numerous consultations with representatives of the dry goods merchants, and agreed upon a number of recommendations to be acted upon by the Board of Fire Underwriters. The improvements deemed necessary are numerous and important, and include the obtaining of a more prompt increase of the water supply than is likely to be had from the Croton Valley. The committee recommends that the Board approve the Ramapo scheme.

prompt increase of the water supply than is likely to be had from the Croton Valley. The committee recommends that the Board approve the Ramapo scheme.

The chairman said that the purpose to be accomplished by the proposed changes was not so much the increase of the present ratings (which are regarded as onerous enough already) as the adoption of such measures, through the medium of rates, as would tend to lessen the hazard of a general conflagration, and thereby enable merchants to secure that protection by insurance which under present conditions they are unable to obtain. The high buildings already erected can not be removed, nor can the flimsy partition walls be strengthened, or the narrow streets be widened. Each one of these defects forms an important factor in the aggregate sum of the conflagration hazard. The underwriters believed, however, that if iron shutters are placed on the fronts of all the buildings where the streets are forty feet wide or less, if the parapet walls be raised to a minimum height of four feet, and if elevators inside the buildings are inclosed by walls of a sufficient thickness, the liability to conflagration would be materially lessened. Other measures recommended by the committee, which had given careful attention to the matter, were increased rates on buildings over sixty-five feet high, when not absolutely five-proof; a reduction of 5 cents per $100 of insurance in case all parts of the building are protected by automatic fire alarms, an allowance for buildings the sub-cellars and basements of which are equipped with perforated pipes, and similar recommendations. A sub-committee consisting of Messrs. Hope, Jeremiah and Kennedy had made an investigation into the question of water supply and the means of extinguishing fires, and called attention to the need of more fire-engines in the dry goods district. It suggested that an ornamental building capable of holding at least two engines should be creeted at City Hall Park at Broad way and Chambers st.

the final bell rang, and with a hurried grasp of the hand and a slight raising of the hat Mr. Gebhard made his adien. Mr. Talboys was more impressive in his parting saluration, and saluted Mrs. Langtry in tree fatheriy fashion.

Just as the gangway was being withdrawn, and while Mrs. Langtry, standing on the burricane deck, was blowing kisses with both hands to the little knot of triends on the pier, a troop of weird-looking creatures, prominent as to head-gear and wid and dishevelled as to their looks, rushed up, and two of them made a flying leap upon the vessel. One of these, a gray-bearded old man, shouted to the others "Keep up the fight," and then tripped up and boarded the vessel in an undignified manner. The huge mass began slowly to move forward, there was a rush made toward the end of the rier by those anxious to catch a last glimpse of their friends, and Mr. Gebbard followed them, slowly and pensively, occasionally lifting his hat as he eaught sight of Mrs. Langtry through the openings in the side of the shed. As he neared the end of the pier, however, he cast dignity to the winds and made a frantic rush forward, meeting a returning crowd armed with wet umbrellas who had had enough of standing in a rainsform to wave moist hand kerchiefs. He braved the dripping umbrellas and jumping forward to the extremity of the pier waved his hat with a last despairing effort. Being asked why he did not accompany Mrs. Langtry he replied sententiously: "Because I didn't want to." Mrs. Langtry was seen for a few minutes as she was leaving the Albemarle by a Tribune reporter, and said:

"I leave America with genuine regret, which is softened by the knowledge of my speedy return. I have been tracted kindly everywhere, though of course I cannot be blind; to the fact that unkind and rather uncalled-for statements have been made about me. CHARGED WITH INTENT TO DEFRAUD.
Charles A. Byrne, editor of Byrne's Dramatic Times, and Samuel G. Barnard, a lawyer, living at No. 413 Grand-st., in the Tomba Poice Court yesterday were charged by Joseph Brooks, a theatrical manager, of No. 44 West Twenty-third-st., with disposing of property with intent to defraud him. It appears that Mr. Brooks, for money advanced in February, 1882, received a promissory note from Mr. Byrne for $257-25. When the note was due Mr. Byrne failed to redeem it, and an action to recover the amount was brought and was decided in favor of the complainant. On November 24, 1882, an execution was issued for the judgment obtained and was returned unsatisfied, but it was ascertained that about a month before the defendant transferred fity-one shares of stock in the Byrne Dramatic Times Publishing Company to his attorney, Samuel G. Barnard. The lawyer, it is said, subsequently turned the property over to Mrs. Byrne. The defendants pleaded not guilty. Justice Smith set down the examination in the case for Friday. GRAND JURY AND FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

The Grand Jury met yesterday morning at the summons of the foreman, S. W. Comstock, to consider the question of beginning the proposed investigation of the affairs of the Finance Department. Charles S. Smith, the chairman of the committee appointed to engage the experts, reported that two of the banks had declined to name accountants. There was considerable discussion as to whether any further action should be taken in the matter. The July term closes on August 3, and it was conceded that no examination could be made in the short period remaining of the term. Grand Juries have sometimes been continued beyond the close of the term for which they were selected, but the District-Autorney was of the opinion that difficulty might arise from having two Grand Juries in existence at the same time. A resolution was finally passed by a unanimous vote adjourning the Grand Jury till August, when GRAND JURY AND FINANCE DEPARTMENT.

some of the prison cases will probably be disposed of before the jury is discharged.

Several of the members who were most interested in the proposed investigation expressed regret that it was impossible for the present Grand Jury to prosecute the inquiry. It was hoped that the investigation would be taken up by the Grand Jury for one of the fall months. Statements were made to members of the Grand Jury that led some of them to believe that an examination by experts employed by a non-partisan and powerful body like the Grand Jury would disclose many facts not known to the public. A bookkeeper formerly employed in the Controller's office stated that it was impossible, from the books alone, and without the aid of memory, to ascertain what the amount of the city's debt had been at any time. The Grand Jury has the power to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, and facts could be obtained by them that might not easily be found out by other investigators.

A PRIEST CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

The Rev. Father P. Karney is pastor of the Roman Catholic Church at Hempstead, L. I. He also officiates at Long Beach on Sunday mornings during the summer. On Saturday evening he was driven from Hempstead to Pearsail's Corner to take the train for Long Beach. The station agent, Benjamin Purroy, who so do him a ticket, says that the priest was intoxicated. He went out to the platform and sitting down fell asieep and missed the train. When he was awakened he became furious and used the most abusive and profane language to the agent and switchman. Finally he went to the hotel of Robert Furman, directly opposite the depot, and engaged that gentleman to take him to his home at the village of Hempstead. They drove quietly along until they reached Norwood, about midway between Pearsail's and Hempstead, when, Furman says, the priest suddenly seized the rems, and drawing the whin from the socket, with an oath struck him with the batt end back of the ear. Furman seized the reins with one hand and the priest by the arm, and both fell from the wagon. Both men fongut savagely while on the ground, the priest striking the horse with the whip at every opportunity; Furman clinging to the reins, and trying to blind Karney by throwing sand in his eyes. The match was an unequal one, Karney weighing nearly 200 pounds, while Furman is much-smaller and lighter. Fortunately, two young men living at Norwood, who were on their way home, separated the men. Furman got into his wagon and drove home, leaving Kearney in the road to get home as best he could.

Mr. Furman yesterday, through his counsel, George A. Mott, of Pearsail's, begun a suit against Father Karney for assaulting and injuring him. A PRIEST CHARGED WITH ASSAULT.

OBJECTING TO THEIR DAUGHTER-IN-LAW.
Robert McCartney, age eighteen, was committed to the Passaic County (N. J.) Jail yesterday by Recorder Greaves, of Paterson, on a charge of disorderly conduct preferred by his mother, who lives with her husband at Næ134 Mechanic-st., Paterson. The real reason for having the young man sent to jail is admitted by his parents to be dissatisfaction at his marriage with a young woman named Fanne Higgins, of Straight and Tyler ats. The step was taken in the hope that thirty days in a cell would cure Robert of his attachment for the woman and induce him to leave her. The marriage ceremony was performed last Saturday by Dr. David Robinson, who some time ago presented extravagant bills to the Paterson Board of Aldermen and the Passaic County Board of Freeholders for saving thousands of lives by issuing circulars on sanitary subjects. Young McCartney's parents have employed counsel to insutute proceedings in chancery to have the marriage annulied on the ground that it was procured by fraud and that Dr. Robinson had no right to perform the ceremony. The latter, however, asserts that he is a regularly ordained minister of the Wesleyan Methodist Church in England. Mr. and Mrs. McCartney say that Robert has for three years been the object of Miss Higgins's matrimonial designs, and that he was a respectable and temperate young man until he began to "keep company" with her.

Young McCartney stoutly maintains his intention to stick to his wife, add says that she never induced him to drink and that he was soler when he married her. His wife denies that she ied him into evit ways, and thinks that the ground of the opposition of his parents to her is religious prejudice—as they attend the Roman Catholic Church and sae does not. OBJECTING TO THEIR DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

Controller Campbell reached town yesterday, but Controller Campbell reached town yesterday, but the state of his health is such that he cannot resume his duties. He sent to the Mayer a letter announc-ing that he would extend his absence from the Finance Department until July 31, and designating Deputy Controller Storrs as his substitute. The Controller does not gather strength as fast as his friends could wish. He purposes to resume his du-ties at the head of the Finance Department on Tuesday next, but it is possible that he may not do so. His friends still wish him to take an ocean trip.
